Video: Fukushima VICE - you won't regret spending 13min. to watch this excellent documentary

Fukushima VICE - Playing with Nuclear Fire (13min.)

This excellent documentary which depicts the current situation in Fukushima starts with Yamada family's visiting their abandoned house 3 years ago, Their house was 3.3 miles away from Fukushima Nuclear Power Plant. They entered the house and were startled by how dirty and terrible the condition was. You might have seen the similar scene in the recent Godzilla movie. But this is not a movie. This is real. Clearly more are going on at the plant than what the Japanese government and TEPCO are willing to admit. Whistleblowers are silenced and the truth is hard to come out. But the dark reality of radiation won't be silenced forever. Professor Michio Kaku says, this became one of the greatest nuclear disasters of all time. If we continue, not only Japan, but also, Earth is in peril, a former Japanese House Representative raises serious concerns.

Take a moment and watch this video. You'll be the judge.

AFTER

Fukushima VICE - Take thirteen minutes to watch this excellent and revealing documentary

Fukushima: Playing with Nuclear Fire (13 min.)

VICE, HBO's online investigative documentary series committed to immersionist journalism, recently posted this documentary depicting the truth of the current situation in Fukushima, site of the world's worst nuclear accident. Watch as the Yamada family revisits their abandoned home, located only 3.3 miles from the Fukushima Nuclear Power Plant. Viewers may have seen a similar scene in the recent Godzilla movie, but this story is real. The Japanese government and the Tokyo Electric Power Company (TEPCO) hide the truth not only from Fukushima residents and all Japanese citizens, but also from the rest of the world. Whistleblowers are silenced, and the undeniable facts are suppressed. However, the dangers and dark realities of radiation must be publicized. Far worse than Chernobyl, the nuclear accident in Fukushima is the worst nuclear disaster of all time. Unless the cleanup and disposal of radioactive waste and water proceed at more effective and rapid rates, Japan, and the entire Earth will be imperiled. Take thirteen minutes to watch this video; your anger and frustration will hit you in the face.
